Kali Linux Skin Pack For Windows 10.Q: php REGEX get same result as str_replace
Hello I have a following array and I want to replace every string in this array that I fetch with RegExp: `$arr = array(' ',' ',' ',' ');` I fetch a URL every time from any of such "wrapper" strings and use str\_replace: `foreach($arr as $url) { $search = '/http:\\\\url.com/'; $replace = ''; echo str_replace($search, $replace, $url); }` So far so good, its working. But I want to make it much cleaner and simpler, if you see the result, str\_replace is trying to be smart and remove all in my initial array that will be bad. So I'm going to try a new approach: `foreach($arr as $url) { $search = '/http:\\\\url.com/'; $replace = ''; echo preg_replace($search, $replace, $url); }` The results are almost the same but I try to reduce the effort. And my question is, is there any possibility to get the same result using regex or do I need to use str\_replace every time? I'm wondering if there is some pattern that I can use to replace all with Thanks in advance. A: Look for any string with url.com/ and replace it with str\_replace would break the pattern if there are more strings with url.com/.
`$pattern = "/http:\\\\url.com\\\";`
